

OUTDOORS

With BRUCE WHITMAN

AND SO, INTERESTED PENNSYLVANIA fishermen are still waiting for the findings of the study which was all but completed in 1966. In case it's been so long ago that you've forgotten what it was all about, the study was made to find out if shad could migrate and survive in the Susquehanna if fish passage devices past power dams were provided.

The study was financed by utility companies operating the power plants.

Also of interest to area anglers is the disposition of Stony Creek under plans of the Pennsylvania Power & Light Company to construct a pumped-storage hydroelectric station on State Game Lands 211 in Stony Valley.

Robert J. Bielo, executive director of the Fish Commission, will speak on the subject Tuesday night at a meeting of the Harrisburg Hunters & Anglers Assn.

The group's regular monthly meeting will start at 8 p.m. at its Lower Paxton Twp. game farm.

Although the State Game Commission will have final say on PP&L's plans for the tract of Game Lands, the Fish Commission has the responsibility of seeing that anglers' rights are protected in the area.

PP&L HAS PROPOSED SEVERAL moves in regard to fishing on Stony Creek, all of which it claims would be beneficial to the angler.
